You said Roblox is hugely popular with kids — how does Roblox protect them from bad actors?

What has made Roblox unique in its field has been the interplay between its enormous constellation of experiences and its personalised avatar system. When you enter any given Roblox world, the user does not assume control of a context-relevant character (think Sonic, Mario, or Lara Croft) but as your persistent, user-created avatar. A virtual You, effectively – whoever you've chosen to be. Add to that an attendant in-game economy which has sprung up to support this expression of identity, with all sorts of user-generated clothing, hairstyles, accessories and skins available to purchase in the platform's avatar shop. Roblox offers an opportunity, then, not just for play, but for digital-first designers and entrepreneurial retailers.

The short answer is that Roblox is absolutely a free-to-play game. It can be downloaded and played on PC, Xbox One, iOS, and Android free of charge. It's not a demanding game either, so you should be able to play it on most PCs without running into any problems whatsoever.

You could set up a private party in Roblox's dedicated space, which can almost feel like a virtual rave. But I'd expect that more Roblox birthday parties look like a bunch of friends opening up the app, partying up, and just jumping from game to game and world to world right from the launcher. In the span of an hour, you can hop through all kinds of different experiences because the app loads everything really quickly, which means it's pretty easy to replicate the chaotic energy of a real kids' birthday party.

Their goal is to take your account name and password, then take over your account so you no longer have access. This includes taking all of your items, as well as any Robux you have accumulated. Roblox themselves urges anyone who encounters one of these to report it to their team through their Report Abuse System.

While a lot of them are untrustworthy, a few others do operate legally after obtaining licensed permission to distribute by partnering with the official Roblox community.
